DETAILED ACTION

Status

Claims 1-21 are pending and presented for examination.

Election

1. This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1. There are two separate election of species in the instant application, where the first election is between the following two species, which are directed towards the polymeric molecule in the chemical additive:

(a) polyacrylic acid

(b) alkyl methacrylate

The second election of species is directed towards the monomer incorporated in the chemical additive, and election must also be made between the two following species:

(i) acrylamide, methacrylamide and ethylmethacrylamide

(ii) vinylpyridine and vinylpyrrolidone

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species between (a) and (b) and also between (i) and (ii) to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

1. The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Claims 4-11 serve to further define the chemical additive that is added to the CMP abrasive. This additive has two parts, being a polymeric molecule and a monomer. The species denoted as (a) and (b) are species of polymeric molecules, which comprise the chemical additive. The species denoted as (i) and (ii) are species of monomer, which comprise the chemical additive.

The following claim(s) are generic: Claim 1.

2. The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The generic claim is not a special technical feature because it is not a contribution over the prior art. CMP abrasives have been found in the prior art, where these abrasives comprise the same components as that of the instantly claimed invention in reference to the generic claim. US Patent Number 6,821,897 discloses such an abrasive, where a ceria slurry and chemical additive having two or more functional groups (with a monomer and polymer precursor) are used. Specifically in Column 7, it is stated that the complexing agent could be a poly(acrylic acid), with carboxylic acid monomers. The discovery of this feature within the prior art means that the feature of claim 1 is not a special technical feature, meaning that the election of a species is proper.

3. A telephone call was made to Hosoon Lee on Wednesday, September 5, 2007 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.

4. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).

Conclusion

Claims 1-21 are subject to an election of species requirement.
